INTRODUCTORY

THE PURPOSE OF THIS WORK, primarily, is to lay before newspapers, magazines, libraries and educational institutions facts concerning men who are progressive in the various sections of the State. It will afford an opportunity for the study of human character and individuality, with faithful presentments of the features of men into whose hands have fallen the material, religious and artistic interests of the State, men of intellect, shrewd, earnest, enterprising, creative; men who exert vast influence over the financial, mercantile, religious, artistic, legal and governmental interests of this State.

Since issuance of our first reference volume, "Men of California," published in 1902-1903, which found an accepted place in a great many libraries, California has undergone many remarkable changes in the ranks of those who have figured in the State's progress and upbuilding. Pioneers have passed on, leaving cherished memories of their labor and enterprise in the fields of commerce, agriculture, finance and in the learned professions, and into their places have stepped sons who are today carrying forward opportunities and progress. It is easy to understand why the names and records of this new generation of men who are conspicuous in California's development would be of interest to many, but more particularly as a reference work for business and professional men and writers.

Years hence this work will have an increased value, for it will stand as a record of many of the present generation of workers who are keeping open the path of State progress for those who are to succeed them and carry forward the task. In connection with the biographs contained herein, many lifelike portraits have been added thereto.

Thomas Carlyle said: "* * * Often I have found a portrait superior in real instruction to half a dozen written biographies; or rather, let me say, I have found that the portrait was as a small lighted candle by which the biographies could for the first time be read, and some human interpretation be made of them.

"* * * It has always struck me that historical portrait galleries far transcend in worth all other kind of national collections of pictures whatever; that, in fact, they ought to exist in every country, as among the most cherished national possessions, and in no country is there at present such a thing to be found."

"Men of California" is a reference cyclopedia of citizens of California. Its value to the young is unquestioned, as it teaches them to emulate the deeds of those who are living examples of successful men. It is for the home as well as for reference in office and counting room; it is a study and of decided interest to the student of human nature, the historian and the antiquarian. Biography, in short, is history on the personal side. This volume, therefore, is California history in a most attractive and intimate form.

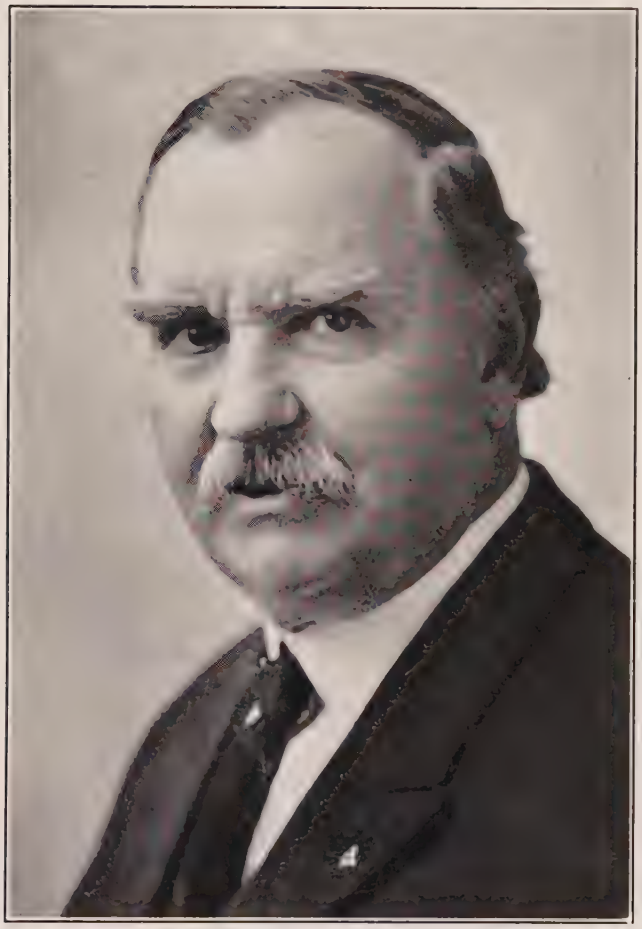

This work is submitted to the public in the confidence that the careers herein described will be found stimulating to patriotism, and a potent factor in cheering and inspiring the efforts of rising generations.

Our thanks are due to the Newspaper Editors, Librarians of Public Libraries, Portrait Studios, Photo Engravers, who have co-operated in the very pleasant though difficult work of creating this volume, and from the many friendly courtesies received from others in the course of our labors to enhance the scope of the work. I take this opportunity to thank them most heartily.

After the death of his father, young Mein came to California, in 1859. Going to Nevada county, he engaged in mining; visited the State of Nevada in quest of hidden gold, and at the age of 29 was made manager of a well developed mine. Was postmaster in Nevada City, resigning after six months' service to accept a position in Venezuela with the El Callao Mine, controlled by the Rothschilds, and at that time—about 1834—was the largest gold producing mine in the world. Later was sent to the Treadwell mines in Alaska where he instituted underground mining instead of open quarry mining. Was sent to South Africa in charge of the Robinson Gold mines, the largest producers on the African continent. Became active in the reform movement, was made a prisoner at the time of the Jameson raid. Captain Mein was an intimate friend of Mark Twain's, and held the respect and affection of all who were identified with the gold mining industry of South Africa, Alaska and California. Was associated with the late Hamilton Smith, Hennen Jennings and H. C. Perkins, and was a friend of John Hays Hammond. Mr. Mein is a member of the Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C., the Chevy Chase of the same city, the Metropolitan and Sleepy Hollow Country clubs of New York, the Rand Club of Johannesburg, South Africa, the Burlingame Country Club of Burlingame, the Pacific Union and Bohemian clubs of San Francisco. Was married, in April, 1907, to Frances Williams, daughter of the late Mr. Gardner F. Williams, who was so prominently identified with Cecil Rhodes in the development of the diamond mining industry of South Africa. HAYES, Jay Orley,: Publisher, mines, fruit and water development and promotion official, member of the Executive Board of the Republican State Central Committee and Regent of the University of California since 1923, is the son of Amos E. and Mary Folsom Hayes, and was born at Waterloo, Wisconsin, October 2nd, 1857. He was educated in the public schools of the Wolverine state and graduated from the University of Wisconsin in the class of 1880, receiving the Bachelor of Laws degree. For several years after leaving the university, Mr. Hayes practiced law in his native state, then in June, 1887, determined to build a home out in the West, and came to California. Numerous opportunities presented themselves for his well-equipped ability, but, with a vision like that of the Patriarchs of old, he sensed the future greatness of undeveloped natural resources and devoted his talent, time and energy to their propagation. In conjunction with the many extensive development enterprises with which he was officially associated, Mr. Hayes, following the bent of early training, became interested in newspaper publication. Previous successes as writer and manager encouraged him in the belief that he could make newspaper publication profitable, and with this belief he became the proprietor and publisher of the San Jose, Mercury-Herald Company, publishers of the Mercury-Herald of that city. The ever enticing quest for gold lured him to the High Sierras where he became interested in bringing from mother earth the elusive mineral for which so many men have braved the hazards of natural obstruction, and he became Treasurer of the Hayes Mining Company. Irrigation, the distribution of water over otherwise unprofitable and unproductive areas of land engaged his attention, and he was made president of the Sierra Buttes Canal and Water Company, and Vice-President of the Foxall Heights Company. Aside from these important development operations, he is Treasurer of the Hayes Chynoweth Company and holds a like position with the Harmony Iron Co., of San Jose. Also Mr. Hayes is a Director of the California Prune and Apricot Growers Association. In May, 1923 he was appointed to the Board of Regents of the University of California. Was a delegate at large to the Republican National Convention in 1916 and Vice-Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Central Committee, and at various times has been prominently associated with other California business, social and political activities. He is a life member of the Wisconsin State Historical Society. Actively interested in the San Jose Chamber of Commerce. A member of the Commercial and the Golf and Country clubs of the Santa Clara valley metropolis and is a strikingly interesting figure in the general development of central and northern California. Married to Clara I. Lyon, June 16th, 1885, and their residence is Edenvale, near San Jose, California.

THOMAS F. BOYLE

BOYLE Thomas F.,: Auditor of the city and county of San Francisco, former business manager of the daily "Call," and "Bulletin," and generally well known and respected citizen, was born in Boston, Mass., and came with his parents, Patrick J. and Margaret W. Boyle, to California in 1861. He received an education in the public schools. After finishing a High school course, Tom, because of the urgent necessity for his contributing to the family support, procured employment and proudly did his bit for the happiness and comfort of aging parents. Entering the press room of a large metropolitan daily he did the duties of a "Printer's Devil," and did them so well that one promotion followed another in rapid succession and in a few years Tom Boyle sat in the Business Manager's chair and directed the intricate but interesting process utilized in modern newspaper production. He remained officially identified with the production of newspapers in San Francisco for 26 years. The ambition which had aided him to surmount many discouraging obstacles, goaded him on, and, conscious of the trust that had been placed in him by the public during his connection with local newspapers, he thought he would like to serve the public who had so honored him. How well he succeeded in intensifying that trust is evidenced by two years service as an Election Commissioner, four years as a Director of the public schools of San Francisco and fifteen years of unbroken service in the Auditor's office. Mr. Boyle is one of the best known men in the official life of San Francisco county, and none other can boast of a greater group of confiding, admiring friends. In 1883 Mr. Boyle was married to Jessie Brown. Their home is 2807 Steiner Street, San Francisco, and Mr. Boyle can almost always, during working hours, be found in his office at the City Hall. He is a member of the San Francisco Press Club, the Olympic Club and the Knights of Columbus.

While Harley was still very young the family moved to Gallatin, Missouri, where his boyhood was spent. Later in life he established himself in business in Kansas City, coming from there to California in 1897. Previous to his appointment to the board of California State Railroad Commissioners, of which board he is at present president, Mr. Brundige was engaged in newspaper work. He has served in various capacities, from reporter to editor and managing editor, as well as owner and publisher. From 1886 to 1890 he published two papers, The "Headlight", at Horton, Kansas, and the "North Missourian" at Gallatin, Missouri. He then went to Kansas City and did reportorial work for the "Journal", and later for the "Times" of the same place. From 1894 to 1897 he was city editor of the Kansas City World. Going to Los Angeles, California, in 1897, he accepted the city editor's desk of "The Record". Going to Portland, Oregon, in 1898 he was city editor of "The Telegram" for about one year. In 1899 Mr. Brundige returned to Los Angeles as managing editor, and later as editor-in-chief and assistant publisher of "The Evening Express" of that city. He retained his affiliations with "The Evening Express" until 1919. During a term of years he also served as editor and assistant publisher of "The Morning Tribune", both papers being owned and published by the late Edwin T. Earl. He is prominent in the social and civic life of San Francisco and Oakland, where he resides, at 491 Staten Avenue, with his wife, who, previous to her marriage was Miss Emma L. Wolff. KRUTTSCHNITT, Julius,: Former Chairman of the Board and directing head of the Southern Pacific Company, was born in New Orleans, La., July 30, 1854, the son of a Prussian Consul. Graduated from Washington and Lee University 19 years later with the degree of Civil Engineer. Taught school for five years, then entered the services of the Morgan, Louisiana & Texas Railroad and Steamship Company as a resident engineer. He attracted the attention of E. H. Harriman in 1900 when the latter secured control of the Southern Pacific Railroad and was drawn into that organization as chief operating officer. For 1904 his jurisdiction was widened to include operation of the Union Pacific. In addition to his commanding position in the transportation field, Mr. Kruttschnitt was a director and member of the executive committee of the Western Union Telegraph Company and of the Harriman National Bank and United States Mortgage and Trust Company. During the war he served as a member of the Railroad War Board, which assumed the task of attempting the emergency consolidation of all the primary carriers into a unified system for movement of troops and supplies. Kruttschnitt's friends recall that when he left college he found his financial assets were $14. He was offered and finally accepted a position as an instructor in mathematics and astronomy in a private school in that state. A wealthy patron of the school who was interested in projected railroads in Louisiana and Texas was attracted by the working methods and standing of the young teacher. This man offered him a good salary to go to Louisiana to help in the survey and construction of a new railroad. This railroad became soon afterward a part of the Southern Pacific Company's lines. It is now a part of the main line of that company between San Francisco and New Orleans. In 1893 Kruttschnitt first met Collis P. Huntington, President of the Southern Pacific Company and he made him first assistant chief engineer and roadmaster of the Southern Pacific Company. His promotion from that time on was rapid. Mr. Kruttschnitt's retirement May 31, 1925, closed a career covering more than 48 years in the service of America's great carriers, which culminated in his assuming the supervision of the Southern Pacific as the heir of the Harriman tradition in railroading. His ceding of active management was in deference to the road's rule that its executives should give up the reins when they reached the age of seventy years. While Mr. Kruttschnitt was with the company, the Southern Pacific grew in twelve years from a road of 10,000 miles, with annual earnings of $143,000,000, to 16,000 miles and earnings of more than $300,000,000, placing it third in the list of National carriers. (Died June 15, 1925.)

HENRY KENYON BURCH

BURCH, Henry Kenyon,: Mining metallurgical and mechanical engineer, with offices in the Hillstreet Building, Los Angeles, was born April 19th, 1873 in Washington county, New York, the son of Adelbert LeRoy and Rachel Burch. Was educated in the public schools of Greenwich, New York, Marshall's Seminary at Easton, New York, and in 1901 graduated with the B. S. degree from the State College of Washington, which institution also conferred upon him the M. E. degree in 1921. Was a draughtsman, and clerk to the Master Mechanic of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company's plant at Anaconda, Montana, in 1901, and in 1902 draughtsman and engineer for the Daly-Judge Mining Company and the Park City Metals Company, Park City, Utah. From 1903 to 1905 was with the Detroit Copper Company, Morenci, Arizona, where he designed, constructed and placed in operation a 1500-ton crushing and concentrating plant. From 1906 and 1908 designed, constructed and placed in operation a 2500-ton crushing and concentrating plant for the Montezuma Copper Company, Nacozari, Sonora, Mexico. During the period from 1909 to 1911 designed, constructed and placed in operation a 4000-ton crushing and concentrating plant and power and pumping system for the Miami Copper Company, Miami, Arizona. From 1912 to 1916 was engaged in the designing, construction and operation of a 20,000 ton crushing and concentrating plant, also mining, hoisting, power and pumping systems, together with all surface and underground tram and railway system for the Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company, Inspiration, Arizona. The hoisting system of this plant was designed to do the work automatically, so also were the skips used in connection therewith. A technical article in reference to this plant appears in Vol. LV, 1917, of the transactions of the A. I. M. E. and was written jointly by M. A. Whiting and H. Kenyon Burch. This was probably the first large Copper Mining plant in the United States to use Ball Mills for fine crushing of ores. Flotation was also included in the original plans of a large plant for the first time in the United States. During this period, Mr. Burch also remodeled the concentrating plant of the Dominion Mining & Smelting Company. From 1922 to 1923 was Consulting Engineer for the New Cornelia Copper Company, Ajo, Arizona, and was in charge of the design and construction of a 5,000 ton crushing and concentrating plant, pipe-line water supply and pumping system for that company. McINNES, Dr. John,: Veterinarian, associate of the firm of Drs. Auburua & McInnes, Veterinarians, with hospital and offices at 26 Fell Street, San Francisco, was born in Scotland, July 18th, 1885, and is the son of John and Mary McInnes. His early boyhood was spent amid the fragrant heather bloom of the moorlands, a Scotch lad whose parents were unable to give him the advantages offered for education, even in the rural schools of their stern, legendary and romantic native land. Just as an American boy loves his playful pup, so did John love the shaggy Collie playing at his heels or ferreting from hazelthorn and laurel brush a heedless sheep or helpless lamb. Growing into young manhood, the sympathy and affection for helpless, injured animals which developed so unconsciously in his youth became a passion. In the kennels of the rich, following the pack in the chase, or on the almost obscured path of a hill-top trail, a wounded, limping, sick or tired animal never escaped his attention and sympathetic service. He came to California in 1909, passionately fond of all brute life, a poor boy without friend or money, yet rich with a fund of knowledge and that burning passion to relieve distress in animal life. Naturally, no ambition however alluring the reward, could supplant the desire to heal a wound in either man or beast, and John McInnes sought employment in which his humane education would serve to best advantage. His first work in the new Utopia was menial, unremunerative and uncertain, but young McInnes was made of sterner stuff than that which makes men failures. He worked hard by day and went to school at night, ever stopping here or going there to pet a helpless beast, and if in distress, endeavor to relieve the cause. He learned rapidly. Boys with determination usually do. He became a licensed Veterinarian. Once he was Secretary and later President of the San Joaquin Veterinary Medical Association, a member of the Bay Counties Association and a member of the State Veterinary Medical Association, and today Dr. McInnes enjoys a substantial reward for devotion to an ideal, and to duty, an enviable reputation and lucrative practice as a veterinarian. Dr. McInnes, and his collaborator, have recently erected a new hospital at a cost of nearly $50,000.00, one of the best equipped institutions of its kind on the Pacific Coast, where they render skillful medical service to all kinds of animals and specialize in the treatment of small animals. Dr. McInnes was married to Margaret Thompson July 2, 1918, and they reside at 5704 Mission Street, San Francisco.

MILTON CARLSON

CARLSON, Milton,: Handwriting Expert. Examiner and Photographer of Questioned Documents. Office, Suite 601 Law Building, 139 North Broadway, Los Angeles, California. His profession becomes that of confidential advisor and expert witness at court trials for persons, corporations; State, County and District Attorneys; Federal Governments in their various departments, Civil, Criminal and Miltary. Born in Ripley County, near Holton, Indiana, December 8, 1870. Attended public and private schools. Organized, in 1895, the Commercial Department of Los Angeles High School which eventually grew into the Polytechnic and Manual Arts. This was the first complete commercial course ever installed in the public schools. Mr. Carlson remained there several years as principal instructor of penmanship, commercial affairs and higher accounting. He is author of many notable treatises upon the subjects embodied in his present profession and his influence as an expert in this line is international, his opinions and works often quoted. His profession is of vital importance in determining forgeries, identity of handwriting, typewriting, fingerprinting and the like. It has been frequently stated in the press that it is not only Mr. Carlson's ability as an expert, but the fact that he can withstand a most gruelling cross-examination that has made his success. In the Fatty Arbuckle case he demonstrated that the fingerprints on the Hotel St. Francis door was fabrications, this was the first court case of that kind. He was the first to demonstrate that a fingerprint could be forged. He bared the forgery and fraud in the famous stamp case, Kleiman vs. Grinnell, the world's most notable stamp case, representing an approximate value, if genuine, of a half-million dollars. He has to his credit many a notable successful will contest, and other important cases involving documents in dispute. While Mr. Carlson as a loyal citizen takes great interest in Civic affairs and International politics, having been Royal Vice Consul for Sweden, and as an outdoor enthusiast, devoting his vacation time to archaeology and kindred matters, his devotion to his unique profession is continued uninterruptedly—disposition of fortunes, the liberty and even lives of persons are dependent on his analysis of a document.

FRED HARTSOOK

HARTSOOK, Fred,: The third generation of the Hartsook family in photography and founder of the Hartsook Studios in California. From a small studio, opened 1901 in Santa Ana—opening one in Los Angeles a year later (1902) his aim has been to give to photography a state-wide service, recognized today as the largest photographic business in the world. Photographs are records. Their main value is in recording and holding that which memory cannot retain. Such records cannot be estimated in dollars and cents. In a recent address by Professor Utter of the University of California in which he spoke of the recent fire at Berkeley, he stated that the greatest loss was the loss of photographic records of loved ones. There are other things to be valued besides stocks, bonds, real estate, etc. A recent photograph is a deposit in the bank of future happiness. No one would attempt to place a material value on the photograph of a friend or relative who has passed away. In homes where photographic records have been neglected, there comes a time when there are many bitter regrets. Where your heart is your photograph should also be. If you live in California you live in close proximity to a Hartsook Studio, as there are 21 of these studios in the leading cities of California. You will find each studio more than just a "shop." It is a unit of an institution—the greatest of its kind in the world. Most of the portraits taken for this work were made by the Hartsook Studios.
